GROWING SPIRITUALLY FROM LENT TO RESURRECTION

(excerpts)

WITNESS

With Christ, the time of judgement had already arrived. He came, not as one who judges us, but as one by whom all men are able to choose between God and the devil, light and darkness, by the way in which they either responded to or persecuted Jesus Christ. With Christ, the time of the end is already introduced into the world. The world is not against having a savior; as long as that savior fits the world's expectations. This is what the Pharisees and scribes were pointing out in their criticism of Jesus; that he should at least look and act like a savior; he should ride into Jerusalem on a white stallion, not a donkey. He should associate with known religious men, not tax collectors and riff-raH. He should keep the Sabbath holy; not perform miracles on the Sabbath.

In a word, Jesus should, as Messiah, conform to the criterion of savior that the world has set up. The very idea that the world has its own idea of what a savior could be is an act of rebellion and defiance from God. If it can do this, it has the right to stand against God; God then must submit to the world's conditions, like a person who must obtain a visa before entering a foreign country.

Rather, God chose to reveal Himself in Christ, on his own terms, which are revealed only to those who see with the eyes of faith. Those who insist on their own criterion of savior remain shut up in their own darkness.

The tension between the two forces, this world, and the Kingdom of God, is most strained during Holy Week, when Christ infuses eternal life into the body of corruption, transforming the old world into the new.

END OF THE TEMPLE

The most serious charge put against Jesus at his trial was that of his claiming to be able to re-build the Temple three days after its destruction. Jesus did not say He would tear it down, but he prophesied that it would be destroyed, which it was, about 70 AD.

This is the time, however, when the destruction of the Temple just didn't any longer matter, because Christ himself took the place of the Temple. For the Hebrews, it was inside the Temple that the glory of God was present. Now this glory is to be found in the Resurrected Lord. He who is crucified and resurrected takes the central place in the worship of the people which up to then was held by the Jerusalem Temple.

LAST SUPPER

What we most often think of when we celebrate the Divine Liturgy is the Last Supper of the Holy Thursday, before the Friday of our Lord's crucifixion; as if we are mystically sharing that very meal with Him and the Holy Apostles, and we are correct in so doing.

However, as regarding the element of time, we must also consider the timelessness of the eucharistic service by which we share in the eternal joy of the Kingdom of heaven. The Easter joy that we Orthodox experience on the pascal night, the joy that transcends our comprehension, is more like the times when our Lord shared a meal with the disciples after His resurrection, rather than the Thursday of the Last Supper.

Remember the story of the men from Emmaus, in St. Luke's gospel, (Lk. 24: 14) "did not our hearts burn within us ..." and when he called them from the shore as they were fishing, and broiled fish for them, "while they still disbelieved for joy". This is the joy we share when we commune with the resurrected Lord.

CROSS AND RESURRECTION

In the gospel of St. John, time and eternity are given totally new significance by Christ. Death is the sign of this world, the end result of passing time. Christ is life, and the eternal life of God's kingdom. When Christ says:

"He who believes in me, even if he dies will come to life, and everyone who is alive and believes in me will never die." (John 11::25). He is stating that time itself is of no significance, since He is available to both those alive and those dead. The power of God at work in Him that assures eternal life to those who live their lives in the Body of Christ, offers that eternal life to the believers who share His Body, already in this world. Life is the gift of Christ to men, and that life is Christ Himself.

It is the Cross itself which is the final lesson, summarizing dramatically all that Jesus had taught. When he told the disciples of his anticipated death, using the simile of a seed that cannot give life unless it die and be buried, what better example than his own death and burial? (John 12: 24) .

When he speaks of true love as laying down one's life for one's friends, this is just what he did in coming to Bethany and raising Lazarus from the dead, thereby placing his own life in jeopardy.

When the spear is thrust into his side, we who are on this side of the Pentecost coming are able to understand that the blood and water flowing from His side is that which, if a man drink, shall never thirst again, the blood which is from the True vine, the wine, like that of Cana of Galilee, is better tasting than all others, and of unlimited supply.

No career has ever been so crowded as that of the Lord's from the time in Cana of Galilee, when his Mother asked that he miraculously produce wine for the wedding guests and he replied, "My time has not yet arrived," to the time on the Cross, when He could finally return to the Father, assured in his last words that "It is accomplished".

After operating a storefront mission and Orthodox day school in La Habra (1980-1989), Fr. John and Matushka Isabel served as instructors at St. Tikhon's Orthodox Theological Seminary (1989-1993). After serving at Makarios III Seminary in Nairobi, Kenya, in 1995, Fr. John and Matushka Isabel lived in retirement near children and grandchildren in Billings, Montana. Attached to St. Nicholas OCA Church, they enjoyed many years of interaction with the parish. Since Matushka Isabel's death in 2004, Fr. John continued to stay active by authoring several books. Fr.
